Sustaining progress in Healthcare

October 30, 2015

Cancer is a common disease in all regions of the world and the burden is set to increase for the foreseeable future as the Earth's population grows in number and it ages. It is actually predicted that will double by 2030.

With the progress from screening, to diagnosis and treatment, oncology is on the verge of a new dawn. Hence this meeting will be an ideal gathering place for leaders, governmental affairs officers, academia, civil society organizations from across the region/world to share and learn how we can sustain the progress in cancer.

But still there is a lot that need to be done.
